TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE PRESS, RADIO AND TELEVISION:

FRAN SMITH
Director of Staff

This book has been prepared to assist you in coverage of the Detroit Pistons during the 1960-61 National Basketball Association season. We have endeavored to assemble as much material as possible on each player, especially the type of information conducive to preparing features on each player.

It is my sincere hope that you will keep me hopping answering your requests for additional information, pictures and interviews, either taped or live. That's my job and I want the boss to think I'm earning my money.

In the meantime, I am on call day and night to service all of you who have given of your time and talent so graciously in the past. My office number is TY 8-6440 and the home number is HOward 8-5483. Thanks and here's hoping we'll see each and every one of you often during the 1960-61 National Basketball Association season at Olympia and University of Detroit.

ZOLLNER — BASKETBALL PIONEER

Detroit Pistons President Fred Zollner is one of the pioneers of major league basketball, organizing his first professional team in 1941 as an entry in the National Basketball League.

Success on the basketball floor was not long in coming to the president of the Fort Wayne piston-manufacturing corporation that bears his name. Bolstered by such stars as Bobby McDermott, Paul Birch and Buddy Jeanette (formerly of the Detroit Eagles), the Pistons won the National Basketball League championship four straight years (1943 through '46) and captured three world tournaments (1944-45-46) in Chicago Stadium, then recognized as the pinnacle of pro cage fame.

Zollner and his Pistons led three other NBL teams into the Basketball Association of America in 1948 and the following year joined the National Basketball Association, an amalgamation of the old NBL and the rival BAA.

In 1954-55, the Pistons won their first Western Division championship even though forced to play all playoff games on neutral or opponents' courts due to the presence of the American Bowling Congress tournament at Fort Wayne Coliseum, then the Pistons' home base. After hurdling Minneapolis in the semi-finals for the divisional flag, the Pistons extended Eastern champion Syracuse to the full seven games before bowing in the title game, 92-91.

The Pistons repeated as Western Division champion in 1955-56 and were beaten in the world championship playoffs by Philadelphia.

Despite two consecutive divisional pennants, attendance at Fort Wayne failed to improve and Zollner decided to move his club to a city with major league standards. He decided to wait, however, until after the 1956-57 season, which saw the Pistons share first place in the regular season race with St. Louis and Minneapolis, then bow in the first round of the playoffs.

Through his long affiliation with automotive leaders in Detroit, and because of his firm belief that the Motor City is the world's finest sports town, Zollner negotiated to bring the Pistons to Detroit in the spring of 1957.

McGUIRE'S RECORD ONE OF BEST

When the Detroit Pistons promoted Dick McGuire to the head coaching position on December 28, 1959, it was announced that Tricky Dick would retire as an active player for the 1960-61 season and devote full time to handling the team from the bench.

That decision cost the Pistons . . . and the National Basketball Association . . . the services of one of the greatest playmakers the game has ever known.

McGuire was a standout in the NBA for 11 seasons, the last three with Detroit after a long and successful career with the New York Knickerbockers.

In that time, sportswriters and sportscasters literally ran out of adjectives in describing McGuire's superb ability to set up the play and find the open man with needle-threading passes.

Only one word, however, completely summed up McGuire's career: unselfish. In an era of unprecedented scoring, Tricky Dick was one of the game's few super-stars who gained nationwide acclaim via the playmaking . . . not point-scoring . . . route. His best season scoring-wise, was 1958-59 when he tallied 657 points for a 9.2 average. He also had a 9.2 mark in 1951-52 for New York, but played seven fewer games.

On the other hand, McGuire battled Boston's great Bob Cousy each season for the NBA's assists championship, a title he won as a rookie in 1949-50 with 386 successful "feeds." His best season in this department was 1954-55 when he notched 542 assists.

McGuire also was known as one of the cleanest players in NBA history with only 13 disqualifications in 11 seasons, spanning 738 regular season games. He holds the league record for most consecutive games without fouling out . . . 361, from January 19, 1954 through February 18, 1959.

Modest to the "nth" degree, McGuire is 33 years old. He was drafted by the Knickerbockers in 1949 after starring for Brooklyn St. John's. He played four seasons for the Redmen and was a member of the 1943 National Invitation Tournament championship team. Three years with the Navy followed and he completed his college career at St. John's in 1946-47, '47-48 and '48-49. He captained the squad in his junior and senior seasons.

McGuire and Carl Braun, who became head coach of the Knicks in December, too, formed one of the NBA's most formidable backcourt combinations until New York traded him to Detroit in September, 1957, for the Pistons' No. 1 draft choice the following spring.

McGuire was a member of the All-NBA squad in 1950-51 and saw action in seven East-West All Star Games . . . five times as a representative of the Knicks for the East and twice as a Pistons entry for the West.

The Pistons assignment was his first as a coach. He finished the season with a 17-24 record and skippered Detroit to second place in the Western Division.

Golf Is Favorite Off-Season Sport

Several members of the Detroit Pistons keep in condition in the off-season by playing golf. Chuck Noble and Gene Shue are regarded as the "unofficial" champions of the club and shooting consistently in the low 70s. Rookies Ron Johnson and Jackie Moreland started taking the sport more seriously last summer and showed rapid improvement. Even Coach Dick McGuire was afflicted by the "bug," but he refuses to tell his score.

WILLIE JONES — Guard, 6'3", 185

Born June 29, 1937. Lives in Chicago, Illinois. Graduated Northwestern University, 1960. Rookie. Drafted by Detroit in fifth round, 1960. Rated best all-around performer in Wildcat history, alternating between guard, forward and center as senior. Had 17.4 scoring average even though carrying bulk of defensive chores of 'Cats. Named Most Valuable Player twice at Northwestern, earned several All-America mentions. Rated fine ball-handler and shooter, but may get nod because of defensive ability. Good driver, but developing outside shot. Fine rebounder for size. Tabbed as "take-charge" player. Single. Nickname: "The Bird."

PISTONS HAVE WON SIX PRO CROWNS

Since making their bow on the professional basketball scene in 1941-42, the Pistons have vied in three different leagues.

They started in the National Basketball League, switched for one season to the Basketball Association of America in 1948-49 and then moved into the present National Basketball Association when it was formed in 1949-50.

Over the two-decade stretch the Pistons have missed the playoffs only once—the "miss" coming in their lone campaign in the BAA.

Piston teams topped the NBL for three straight years beginning with 1942-43. They also grabbed the NBL's Eastern Division title in '45-'46 when the league was split into two sections. During the same period, the Pistons captured three world tournaments in Chicago.

In the NBA, the Pistons hauled off Western Division crowns in 1954-55 and 1955-56. Each time they went on to the playoff finals before bowing to Syracuse ('54-'55) and Philadelphia ('55-'56).

The Pistons moved to Detroit from Fort Wayne at the start of the 1957-58 season. Prior to this season, while representing Detroit, the Pistons have finished second, third and second in the Western Division.

The team has undergone wholesale personnel changes in its four seasons in the Motor City. This year's roster contains five new faces — Don Ohl, George Lee, Jackie Moreland, Bob Ferry and Willie Jones. Only Ferry has had previous NBA experience, a single season's play with St. Louis.

Bailey Howell, the Pistons' top scoring forward, also is a pro sophomore.

The youth movement bodes well for the future of the Pistons.

Stan Kenworthy — Miles and Miles of Tape

Like President Fred Zollner, who is the dean of NBA owners, Stan Kenworthy stands at the top of the longevity list for professional basketball trainers.

This is the 13th season for Stan, all spent with the Pistons, and while he has never kept a complete record, it's estimated he has used enough tape and gauze since 1947-48 to extend about halfway across the country.

A native of Fort Wayne, Indiana, Stan served as trainer for both Piston teams . . . basketball and softball . . . until a few seasons ago when the latter became so dominant in the sport few challengers were left to play and the team was disbanded.

In addition to his duties as trainer, and in this field he rates as one of the world's best, Stan doubles as road secretary and major domo of the equipment room. He is a veteran of thousands of miles of air travel aboard the Pistons' own DC-3.

Stan's favorite sports . . . next to basketball, are golf and fishing. He has one son, Steve, 16, who "looks like an excellent basketball prospect."

Lloyd Becomes New Talent-Seeker

Veteran Earl Lloyd, with nine NBA campaigns behind him, retired as an active player before the start of the 1960-61 season and immediately was signed by the Pistons to serve as scout and general assistant to head coach Dick McGuire.

The likeable 31-year-old graduate of West Virginia State, popularly known as "Squirrel" in league circles, thus fills a vital role in which many decisions on future player personnel will be reached far in advance of the NBA's annual college draft meeting.

In addition to his scouting assignment, Lloyd is assisting McGuire with the team. His primary duties in this job are to work with the young forwards who form the nucleus of the 1960-61 squad.

Earl and his wife, Virginia, make their home in Baltimore, Md., during the off-season. They have two sons.
